

AGC MEMBER GUIDE

A CHAPTER OF THE ASSOCIATED GENERAL CONTRACTORS OF AMERICA

Communications

AGC of Michigan and AGC of America have many communications tools available to you and your employees. Electronic newsletters are probably the most common tool at the moment. You can “opt-in or out” of these newsletters for ease of use. Magazines, eForums and Michigan Construction News round out our communications review.

- Midweek Briefing – Every Wednesday this electronic newsletter provides detailed information on AGC of Michigan and AGC of America services, programs and activities. It highlights the best information available to you in Michigan and from your national association. To subscribe, email Cathy Kester at ckester@agcmichigan.org.
  - Michigan Constructor Magazine – This quarterly management magazine provides more detailed articles about AGC of Michigan member firms, personnel, projects and chapter activities. It also includes feature articles on key business issues like surviving tough times, green building, renewable energy and technology. To view recent issues online, please visit the Publications page of the chapter’s website – www.agcmichigan.org.
  - AGC-A Newsletters – There are many excellent electronic newsletters produced by AGC-A covering construction markets (building, federal, etc.), key industry issues (environmental, legislative, safety, etc.) and topical areas (labor/HR, education and training, etc.) Make sure your key personnel are accessing this information. Click here for a list of newsletters and how to start your free subscription(s).
  - AGC-A’s Constructor Magazine – Published six times a year, Constructor offers in–depth information about the business of commercial contracting and the management of projects and companies. Articles explore critical issues in areas such as human resources, safety, training and new products. Constructor is a key resource for contractors to achieve success and keep pace in the dynamic commercial construction marketplace.
  - AGC of America eForums – For answers to specific questions, sample forms and documents, and help from an extensive network of AGC members around the country – eForums are hard to beat! Why reinvent the wheel when thousands of AGC members stand ready to help.
